If you feed a dragon a quarter...

His wings will move,
and his mouth will close ...

and he will put
the coin inside.

That's when a child asks;
"How did that happen?"

So they build one of their own

They test it.
Fix it.
Make it work.

And something else
starts to grow...
Confidence

A Future in STEM.
A future they can see.

All because....
Someone fed the dragon

And That's Just the Beginning...

And that one small quarter?
It didn't just feed the dragon.

It sparked an idea.

It built confidence.

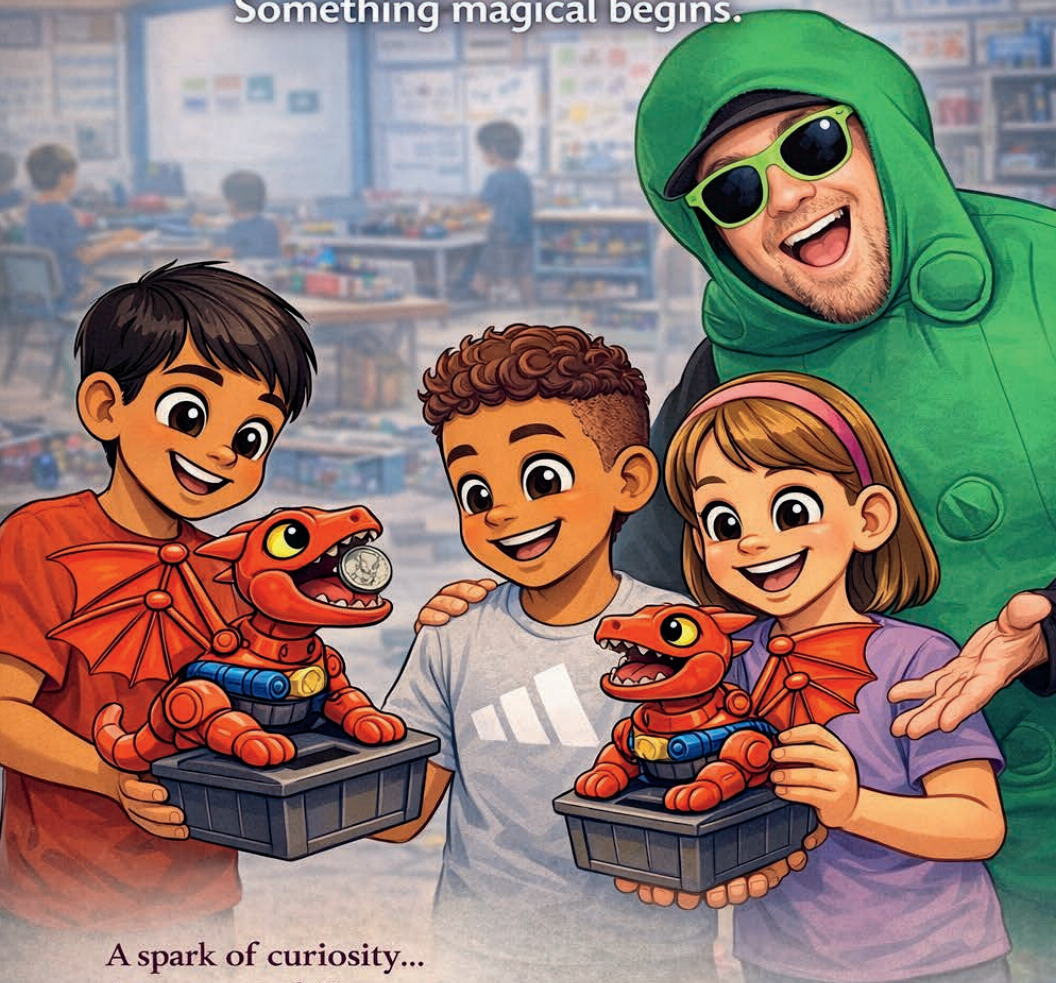

It helped a young mind discover what's possible.

Every day, kids just like me are building, learning,
and dreaming—because someone believed in them.

And it all starts with something small.

What happens when you feed a dragon a quarter?

Something magical begins.

A moment of discovery...
A journey into STEM.

Through hands-on learning, teamwork, and creativity, kids don't just build dragons—they build confidence, skills, and a future full of possibility.
